

Merging Contemporary With Traditional: IPCC Curator Strives To Highlight Native Artists December 1, 2022

www.navajotimes.com/ae/arts/merging-contemporary-with-traditional-ipcc-curator-strives-to-highlight-native-artists/

Readership: 89,946

The screenshot shows a news article from the Navajo Times, dated Tuesday, February 7, 2023. The main headline is "Merging contemporary with traditional: IPCC curator strives to highlight Native artists". Below the headline is a photograph of Paula Mirabal standing in an art gallery, surrounded by various pieces of art, including a large vertical piece and several smaller framed works. The article is written by Chad Moore and is categorized as "Special to the Times". The text discusses the IPCC (Indian Pueblo Cultural Center) and its efforts to highlight Native artists through its annual show. It mentions that the show is open to students enrolled in a federally recognized tribe and attend a local public, charter, or private school. The article also highlights the importance of the show in providing a platform for Native youth to express themselves and share their stories. A QR code is located in the bottom right corner of the article.

