Colors to Words Painting Demonstration & Workshop
Saturday, February 3 | 11AM-1PM
IPCC Artists Circle Gallery & Classroom
Register at: bit.ly/ColorsToWords
Learn about the art of calligraphy, poetry, murals, and mixed media painting through a guided demonstration and workshop by Mallery Quetawki (Zuni) & Blythe Mariano (Diné). The group will meet in the IPCC Artists Circle Gallery for an introduction and then go to the IPCC classroom to paint. Art materials will be provided.

This program is for participants ages 12 and up, with families of all ages welcome. There are only 25 spaces available, so pre-registration is recommended. This program is presented in association with Quetawki and Mariano's exhibition in the Artists Circle Gallery, Colors That Speak Words 2.0. Free for members or with museum admission.

IPCC's Family Story Time
Saturdays, February 10 & 24 | 1-2PM
Children's Area of Museum (No food or drinks allowed in this area.)
Geared for Children Pre-K to Grade 2, but children of all ages are welcome. Our theme for February is friendships. On Saturday, February 10th, our featured book will be Jumping Mouse: A Native American Legend of Friendship and Sacrifice by Misty Schroe. We'll also have friendship activities, including songs, poems, coloring and make-and-take arts and crafts.

On Saturday, February 24th, our book title will be Birdsong by Julie Flett. This title is about an intergenerational friendship between a lonely girl and her elderly neighbor. Make-and-take arts and crafts, songs, poems and coloring will once again be part of the festivities.

Free admission for children and an adult family member.

Pueblo Book Club
Tuesday, February 13 | 2-4:00PM
IPCC Library & Via Zoom:
<https://bit.ly/PBCFeb2024>
Join IPCC Archivist and Librarian Jonna Paden (Acoma) in the library or on Zoom for a discussion with Max Early (Laguna) about his poetry book Ears of Corn: Listen. This renowned Native American potter and poet takes readers on a journey between ancient and modern times, painting a vivid picture of both the everyday and extraordinary moments of family and community life on Laguna Pueblo. $5 suggested donation.

Albuquerque Indian School: Origins and Communities Lecture & Panel
Saturday, February 24 | 10AM-12PM
Chaco I & II
The Albuquerque Indian School educated thousands of children in its century of operation from 1881-1981. In this two-part presentation, Historian and Museum Docent Joe Sabatini covers the history of the Albuquerque Indian School and its many interactions with the Albuquerque community, including cultural, athletic, religious and economic relationships. Part two explores the history of the property following the school's closing, from a political and neighborhood perspective. This includes the deterioration of the campus, the creation of the Indian Pueblos Federal Development Corporation (IPFDC), the reaction of the adjacent neighborhood and the achievement of development agreements with the City of Albuquerque. This enabled the Pueblo people to create a vibrant, thriving cultural and retail corridor in the heart of Albuquerque.

Albuquerque Indian School: Origins and Communities was first presented at the Indian Pueblo Cultural Center on February 19, 2014. Since then, it has been presented numerous times to schools, library and history groups, senior facilities and museum docents.

Free for members or with museum admission.

View into the Collection: Micaceous Clay
Saturday, February 24 | 8AM
Museum or View Online:
<https://bit.ly/IPCC-collections>

Join us for another look at selections from the Indian Pueblo Cultural Center's collection. Our Curator of Collections Amy Johnson will share a variety of vessels formed with micaceous clay. These wares burst forth with sparkle and a glitter-like flare. Discover bits of history, and facets of minutiae to enchant your mind like the glints of mica in the clay.

Colors That Speak Words/Phase II
Artists Circle Gallery
Showing Through February 18, 2024
This month is your last chance to see 'Colors That Speak Words,' a reflection on the seasons of harvest by Artists Mallery Quetawki (Zuni) and Blythe Mariano (Diné). The exhibit is about a time of coming together as a community, harvesting what we know in culture and knowledge and transitioning to a quiet time and inner personal reflection. Free for members or with museum admission.

IPCC's 43rd Annual Native American Student Art Show: Celebrating Our Pollinators
South Gallery
Showing Through February 18, 2024
This month is also your last chance to take in the IPCC's Native American Student Art Show. This annual exhibit was established to encourage creativity among Native youth and to help them understand that the future preservation and evolution of Native culture lies with them. This show's theme, "Celebrating Our Pollinators," gives young artists a showcase to share, through their art, how important pollinators are to our environment and our families. Free for members or with museum admission.

CELEBRATIONS START HERE: AN AUTHENTIC CULTURAL VENUE FOR MEETINGS, PARTIES & EVENTS

As the gateway to the 19 Pueblos of New Mexico, we are experts at providing an authentic and unforgettable experience for our guests. But, did you know that you can host an event at IPCC and that it even benefits our non-profit organization's mission?

With distinct Pueblo architecture and a one-of-a-kind collection of Native art, our full-service venue offers a culturally rich backdrop for your gathering, with versatile indoor and outdoor spaces as well as opportunities to experience Native American culture with museum tours, music and cultural Native dances. We also offer personalized menu planning and catering from Indian Pueblo Kitchen's acclaimed culinary team, with a selection that includes everything from hors d'oeuvres and elegant banquets to buffet stations and bars. Rentals are also available, including: linens, specialty lighting, centerpieces, a dance floor, and full audio and video equipment. Conveniently located just off I-40 in the heart of Albuquerque, we also offer complimentary parking, beautiful lodging nearby and, of course, our celebrated Pueblo hospitality.

So, whether you're planning a business conference or corporate retreat, a wedding, birthday party or celebration of life, our team of experts is ready to customize a memorable event for your next gathering, large or small. We look forward to collaborating with you, and thank you for helping us preserve and perpetuate Pueblo culture, history and art.
