Indigenous Connections and Collections Library Blog - Boarding Schools
View online: bit.ly/IPCC-Library
The objective of government and Christian-run Indian boarding schools, also called industrial schools, was civilization and assimilation of American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian children into American culture. Forced removal of children to 408 boarding schools, across 37 states, including 21 schools in Alaska, and 7 in Hawai'i, worked toward the erasure and destruction of tribal language, cultural, and spiritual beliefs. This month's library blog will connect readers to online and print resources.

Pueblo Book Club: "The Last Conquistador: Juan de Oñate and the Settling of the Far Southwest" by Marc Simmons
Chaco III Room or Virtual

View online: bit.ly/PuebloBookClubJuly2022
The passage of 50 years has not erased the memory of the carnage nor the loss of life Spanish soldiers and mercenaries inflicted upon the Pueblo people. The Coronado invasion of 1540 CE into Pueblo homelands was a prelude to Spain's efforts to expand and colonize Terra Nueva, or the 'new land.' The Last Conquistador: Juan de Oñate and the Settling of the Far Southwest is a thoroughly researched exposé of the history and outcomes of one Spaniard whose impact upon the Pueblo peoples and the descendants of those Spanish colonists is still a contentious New Mexico topic - even today.

Shaun Beyale (Diné): Testament of Empowerment Demonstration and Lecture
Artist Circle Gallery
Comic books are Shaun's main passion and he has done a variety of work within that community. Recently, Shaun fulfilled one of his childhood dreams by working with mainstream company Marvel Comics. Join Shaun for a discussion about his life's work, plus a live demonstration of his craft.

Through October 10, 2022
Shaun Beyale (Diné): Testament of Empowerment Artist Circle Gallery
Tickets/Information: bit.ly/TestamentOfEmpowerment
As a child, Shiprock resident Shaun Beyale's (Diné) strong interest in comic books sparked a passion for drawing his favorite superheroes in his spare time. Eventually, he started to create his own comic book characters, such as an early version of "Ayla, the Monster Slayer," a Diné superhero warrior who protects her homeland and her people. Beyale started his journey as a full-time artist in 2015 and has showcased his art around the world in many forms, including comic books, art galleries, magazines, and video games.

Through February 18, 2023
Traditional Girl with a Contemporary Pop: DeAnna Autumn Leaf Suazo, (Taos/Navajo)
Art Through Struggle Gallery
Tickets/Information: bit.ly/ATSSuazo
This exhibition is about the beauty, humor and laughter, as well as inspiration, this young artist brought to many lives. DeAnna Autumn Leaf Suazo (Taos/Navajo) shows us her view and perspective on life. Her life was short, but her passing has brought attention to domestic violence, a prevalent issue in many Native communities. While this is only one story of many who became victims of domestic violence, this is an opportunity for all voices to be heard. Coalition to Stop Violence Against Native Women: www.csvanw.org

Through February 19, 2023
PIVOT Skateboard Deck Art Exhibition South Gallery
Tickets/Information: bit.ly/IPCC-PIVOT
PIVOT is a compelling, inspiring exhibit that features nearly 150 pieces of art - all using skateboard decks and acrylics as the medium. Co-curated by Landis Bahe (Diné/Navajo) and Kandis Quam (Zuni), PIVOT refers to the quick transitions many Native people make between their traditional and day-to-day lives. The many styles and techniques these Native artists have created in this exhibit are with the same agility they use to navigate through the maze of days between cultures.
