Indigenous Connections and Collections

View Online: bit.ly/IPCC-library

In the month of September, we celebrate the season of the Harvest with a special focus on The Three Sisters: corn, beans and squash. After a long and hot growing season, we now gather the fruits of our gardens and nature in preparation for the winter ahead.

Tuesday, September 14, 2-4pm

Pueblo Book Club: "Southwestern Pottery"

Zoom Webinar: bit.ly/IPCC-bookclub

or attend in person in IPCC's Chaco III Room

Tourism and attendance to Pueblo communities, especially on feast days, is an excellent experiential learning opportunity, as well as a revenue potential for local artisans. An item for purchase for either an experienced collector or a first-time buyer, might be a traditional pottery piece. This month's reading, Southwestern Pottery: Anasazi to Zuni, offers a reader insight into the diversity and uniqueness of Pueblo pottery patterns and influences, coupled with exquisite and exceptional photographs of pottery.

Sunday, September 19, 11am-1pm

Seasons of Growth: Harvest

Zoom Webinar: bit.ly/SOGsep2021

As we enter the harvest season, many plants and trees bear fruits, seeds, roots, or leaves that have many uses. This month's garden learning series will feature presentations and discussions about wild foraging. Foraging is a key part of sustenance for many indigenous communities and allows us to act as sustainable stewards of the lands we occupy. Learn about the benefits of integrating foraging into our existence.

September 22, 9-11am

SEEDSS #4: Traditional Foods

Zoom Webinar: bit.ly/SEEDSSep2021

Please join us for our 4th Pueblo SEEDSS webinar featuring Chef Ray Naranjo and moderated by Andi Murphy, Host of Toasted Sister Podcast. Chef Ray will prepare a meal using traditional outside cooking techniques. We will also have presenters on traditional foods, harvest time, and seed saving.

The Exiles - Film Screening

Courtyard, $10.00 Tickets

(at the door or online at bit.ly/IPCC-exiles)

Join us for a Fall Film screening in our beautiful courtyard. Bring your own chairs and blankets, dressed in your best 1950's outfit. The night will feature a panel discussion about the Relocation Program, led by the exhibit's guest curator, Dr. Christina Castro. We'll also have a 50's dress contest and a screening of Sherman Alexi's The Exiles. A food booth will be available with light snacks, and all proceeds will benefit the IPCC's reimagined Indigenous Cultural Arts Fest, formerly known as the Pueblo Film Fest.

Harvest Time at the Pueblos

View Online: bit.ly/IPCC-collections

Join Amy Johnson, Curator of Collections, for an in-depth look at items from IPCC's Permanent Collection. Our September segment celebrates harvest time at the Pueblos. After spending the summer tending our gardens, now is the time to harvest. Successful fall harvests provide plentiful corn and squash. Amy will share the importance of corn and squash, and their depiction in various art forms. Join us for a look at the selected art works, and the artists who create them.
